WILLKIE HAS CABINET FOR COMING RACE

Names Supporters of Taft And Dewey to Group Heading Campaign.

INGALLS SELECTED

Still Seeks Manager to Co-ordinate Efforts Of Volunteers.

By WALTER KIERNAN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Wendell L. Willkie welded a campaign cabinet today out of the support and opposition he encountered at Philadelphia, bringing together such strange bedfellows as Dewey and Taft campaigners, Willkie amateurs and Republican professionals who went out on the limb for him.

Heading his advisory committee was Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, the ex-railroad man who made such a spectacular success of managing the Willkie nomination on the floor of the Republican convention.

Next he named Congressman Joe Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the convention and acknowledged leader of the Republican house group.

Then he added Governor Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut, a first termer in the Nutmeg state who ousted the veteran Democratic Governor Wilbur Cross in a three way split with Socialist Jasper McLevy of Bridgeport. Baldwin cancelled his favorite son nomination at Philadelphia to second Willkie and bring him Connecticut's solid bloc of 16 votes on the first and subsequent ballots.

Turning to the opposition, Willkie named David S. Ingalls of Ohio who led the nomination fight for Senator Robert A. Taft, and he named Ruth Hanna Simms, astute daughter of the late Mark Hanna and a supporter of New York's Thomas E. Dewey from the outset.

Rep. Charles Halleck, young congressman from Indiana who put Willkie in nomination went into the campaign cabinet and so did Governor Ralph Carr of Colorado who was out for Willkie ahead of his delegation and bravely seconded his nomination.

Willkie added Paul Krusi of Tennessee and Oren Root, jr., the young New York lawyer who touched off the Willkie campaign in Manhattan before he ever had met his hero.

Another woman, Ruth Young Kohler who married into the Kohler plumbing family of Wisconsin, also went into the cam-

FISHERMAN SHOT

Marion Man Struck by Stray Bullet at Sugar Lake.

BUCYRUS — Shot by accident as he fished in nearby Sugar Grove lake this morning, Frank Rodey, 34, was in Bucyrus City hospital today, seriously wounded.

According to reports to Sheriff Arthur French, Rodey was struck by a shot fired from across the lake, where two boys, Harry Wilson and William Richards, both 16, and also of Marion, were shooting at snakes in the water.

The Wilson boy's father, William Wilson, told the sheriff he believed one shot, from a .22 rifle, must have ricocheted and struck Rodey.

Rodey was found by his wife, who summoned help. At the hospital, it was said the bullet had entered his left side above the waist.

CIO WINS AT WESTINGHOUSE

Employes Favor Electrical Workers' Union by Vote Of 1,714 to 1,326.

Production and maintenance employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company chose the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, a CIO affiliate, as their bargaining agent at a labor board election conducted yesterday at the plant here.

A tabulation announced by the labor board today showed that out of 3,351 workers eligible to vote, 1,714 favored the union and 1,326 voted against it.

This was the 19th Westinghouse plant to accept the United Electrical Workers organization as its bargaining agency, according to Joseph T. Hawkins, president of Local 711. Earlier in the day the lamp division of the Westinghouse at Bloomfield, N. J. voted 1,451 to 578 to accept the union which is an affiliate of the C. I. O., he said.

Hawkins said an intensive campaign has been conducted by union organizers in the Westinghouse plant since an election last December when employes voted down the Westinghouse Employes Association, Inc., which was a union of local employes only. The union at that time, withdrew from the election.

Hawkins said today "We are gratified with the results of the election and the feeling that we have earned the confidence of the majority of our fellow workers. We ran our campaign on our record of the past few months during which time we have brought

$442,853 Budget For 1941 Approved By City Council

City council last night placed its stamp of approval on the 1941 municipal budget totaling $442,853.50 and calling for $333,863 for general operating purposes next year.

The draft, tentatively approved by the finance committee two weeks ago, was approved without change.

It includes $86,840.50 for general bond retirement and interest charges and $10,150 for firemen's pensions and $12,000 for police pensions, both of which are supported by levies.

The total amount sought for next year's operation of the city departments is $40,000 more than was asked for this year's operations and $27,000 more than was actually appropriated.

The bill will be sent to the county budget commission for certification. The commission must act on the 1941 requests before Sept. 1.

The proposal calling for the installation of parking meters in the downtown district as a means of parking control was given a second reading. The bill was read at the June meeting and will come up for a vote at the Aug. 6 session.

Companions Unable to Save Butler Youngster; Farmer Pulls Body From Water.

Pre-holiday tragedies had claimed the lives today of two small boys in the Richland county area, one in a traffic accident in Mansfield and the other in the waters of swollen Clear Fork creek near Butler.

Riding a borrowed bicycle into the side of a huge transport truck on North Main street about 3 p. m. yesterday, Ronald Dale Ridenour, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ridenour, 97 Lily street, was crushed to death by the truck wheels.

The drowning victim is the son of Royal and Katherine Kirkpatrick of near Butler. One of the boy's two companions, Billy Hildebrand, also nine, attempted to rescue the Kirkpatrick boy, but was forced to swim ashore and call for help when he found he could not pull the boy out of the swirling water.

The two deaths boosted the violent deaths to five in the Mansfield area in the past six days. Four of the victims died in traffic mishaps.

The Ridenour boy was the county's tenth traffic fatality of the year and the second in accidents involving bicycles. At this time last year 13 persons had died in county traffic.

City Set to See 'Biggest and Best' July 4 Fireworks Show

The "biggest and best" Fourth of July community celebration Mansfield has ever had is promised for tomorrow by the Public Parks association, sponsoring the affair for the third consecutive year.

Business will be suspended and the wheels of industry will stop tomorrow as Mansfield joins the nation in celebrating the holiday that is especially dear to freedom-loving Americans—the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia on July 4, 1776.

The weatherman's forecast today promised a holiday of fair weather but with cool temperatures, predicting an ideal day for motoring for the many who have planned trips for the holiday week-end.

The Park association sponsors the all-day show at the county fairground, not only to provide entertainment for children and adults, but as a safety measure, hoping thereby to keep Mansfielders off the highways on the most dangerous day of the year and to appease children who are

CELLAR FLOODS PUZZLERS FOR CITY COUNCIL

Program to Remedy Situation, Where Money's Coming From Topics of Debate.

FURTHER STUDY PLANNED

Legislators Decide to Delve Into Problem at Special Meeting Next Week.

Submission of another complaint concerning storm water in the basement of a west side residence last night set off a lively discussion among city councilmen on the problem of what to do about Mansfield's "water-in-the-cellar" situation.

The discussion, in which practically all councilmen and city officials took part, concerned the following points:

1. What could be done about remedying the situation.
2. How to go about it.
3. Where to get the money.
4. How soon to start.

After a lengthy discussion, councilmen accepted C. N. Shultz' suggestion that council meet as a committee of the whole and study the problem. The meeting was tentatively set for next Tuesday evening.

The controversy started when a claim was submitted by E. M. Alderman, 308 Glessner avenue, calling council's attention to the water in the basement situation in his residence.

The communication stated that the basement water problem had been experienced for the past

TEAR UP W. 4TH STREET MONDAY

WPA to begin Removing Old Pavement In Preparation For New Surface.

Approximately 100 WPA workers will start tearing up West Fourth street from Diamond street to the western city limits, WPA officials said today.

Work will be started at the Diamond street end so that the paving in the downtown section can be completed first, it was said.

Paving is expected to start in the downtown section just as soon as the WPA crew finishes tearing up the old paving. The entire project, which will cost more than $10,000, is expected to require from four to five months, but WPA officials said the section from Diamond to Mulberry streets probably will be ready for traffic about the middle of August.

The project will provide jobs for most of the men on the eligible WPA lists and it may be necessary later to shift some from other projects in the county, officials said.

The paving will be done by the city and the state highway department. The middle section of the street will be brick, while cement will be used for the parking sections on both sides.

Merchants along West Fourth street have urged prompt action on the paving job, because they have been troubled by mud and dust since workers tore up a part of the old street several weeks ago to lay new water lines.

The street has been cut full of holes by traffic and a number of windows in business establishments have been broken by stones flipped from the patched street by automobile tires.

Send Bombers And Subs Into British Drive

Germany Charges Britain Laid Plans To Drag All Europe Into Battle; Daylight Raids Made Over English South Coast.

(By Associated Press)

German U-boats and bombing planes attacked Britain with new fury today, while the official Nazi news agency, DNB, published alleged Allied "win the war" plans for dragging most of Europe into the 10-months-old conflict.

DNB asserted documents captured in France disclosed an Allied program for entangling Rumania, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia and Scandinavia to gain wide-spread new battlefronts against Germany.

The Nazi high command said German planes attacked a convoy off the English channel coast and sank 18,000 tons of British shipping. German submarines, the high command reported, torpedoed another 39,000 tons.

German sky raiders, displaying new boldness in a daylight sortie instead of their usual night-masked attacks, bombed the south coast of England today after an earlier assault that killed 12 and wounded 123.

One Nazi plane machine-gunned soldiers near the beach. Incendiary bombs also were dropped.

British R. A. F. fighters shot down a Nazi bomber off the east coast.

An official air ministry communique issued shortly after noon said anti-aircraft guns were still in action.

With apparent easing of the Balkan crisis, permitting Hitler to divert attention from southeast Europe, Britons wondered if the intensified Nazi air raids signalled the opening of the long-awaited "battle for Britain."

Things were far from quiet, however, in southeast Europe.

Bloody anti-Semitic riots spread through Rumania, and King Carol's hostile neighbor, Hungary, was mobilizing its army to the greatest peacetime strength.

Carol himself was reported on the verge of abdicating several days ago after sharp criticism over his surrender of Bessarabia and North Bucovina to Russia. He was said to have been dissuaded by his cabinet.

Hungarian army reinforcements streamed toward the border with Rumania but the latter based hopes for peace on Carol's bid for protection by the Axis powers and on the strength of her own hastily-massed armies.

Barbed wire and bayonets guarded the frontiers of southern Dobruja, wanted by Bulgaria, and Transylvania. Sporadic border skirmishing was reported.

Anti-Semitic rioting spread throughout Rumania after disorders last night in which scores were injured and many believed killed. Many wealthy Jews fled to the country and others remained inside their homes as police and troops failed to bring the disturbances under control.

British bombers struck hard at the Ruhr valley of northwestern Germany, raided night after night, and sent townsfolk in large industrial cities scurrying to cellars. The Germans counted 41 killed and 73 hurt in the Ruhr raids during the last month and said the attacks have been more severe the past few days.

The British air ministry claimed

PEACE: Diplomats Expect Discussions After Deadlock

(By United Press)

LONDON—Key foreign diplomats in London believe that the war will be deadlocked after an unsuccessful attempt by Germany to invade Britain and that peace discussions will then be started, a survey indicated today.

Diplomats have been reporting to their government that Britain shows no inclination of wanting peace talks now.

They have been expressing the conviction that Germany will fail to conquer Britain by invasion.

They hold also that a formidable British invasion of Germany or of German-occupied regions appears most improbable.

They expect big air raids in which grave damage will be inflicted on both countries, but they believe that these raids will be indecisive.

One prominent foreign ambassador asserted to the United Press that German agents had recently presented peace suggestions to a group of private citizens here and that the private citizens were rebuffed when they sounded official quarters on them.

Bases of the German proposals were reported to be:

1—British recognition of a new pan-Europe under German leadership.

2—Britain to cede to Germany some colonies, which ones could not be learned.

3—French, Belgian and Dutch colonies to become "European colonies," for exploitation under some arranged plan.

4—Germany to conclude an alliance with the British empire.

According to one version, the area which Germany would organize politically and economically under a pan-European program would include part of European Russia.

British authorities and the Spanish embassy (Spain has been mentioned in some reports as a possible peace intermediary) said that they were unaware of any such plan.

DEFENSE: Packard Agrees To Build Airplane Engines

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The national defense commission announced today that the Packard Motor company had agreed tentatively to undertake a contract for 9,000 aircraft engines—3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain.

William S. Knudsen, in charge of defense production, said the agreement was subject to approval of the Packard directors. Henry Ford refused the order, saying he would work only for the United States.

Meanwhile, a supplementary defense program which may run into additional billions of dollars was talked over at a conference between President Roosevelt and key men in the defense set-up.

White House officials were unable to suggest what amount the program might reach or in what manner or when it would be submitted to congress.

The navy yard awarded contracts today for construction of three aircraft carriers and two cruisers, costing $169,530,000 to the Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding and Drydock company.

They are the last of the 92 com-

Naval Affairs Committee Approves Knox Appointment

SENATE VOTES NEXT WEEK ON CABINET POST

Publisher Quizzed on Claim He Urged Military Aid For Great Britain.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate naval affairs committee approved, nine to five, today the nomination of Col. Frank Knox, Chicago Republican, to be secretary of the navy.

This action cleared the way for senate consideration, probably early next week, of the Knox appointment and of the nomination of Henry L. Stimson, also a Republican, to be secretary of war.

The vote came after Knox had been questioned at length about, and had denied specifically, a report that he favored sending United States soldiers to fight in Europe. Stimson's nomination was approved yesterday by the senate military affairs committee.

The naval committee called Helen Essary, a Washigton newspaper columnist, to testify about her June 22 column which quoted Knox as having said:

"We should go into Europe at once, not only with cash and credit and supplies, but with men."

Knox, a Chicago newspaper publisher, denied having made such a remark and added: "I would'nt want to say that the lady was a prevaricator—just that she misunderstood me."

Knox said that in editorials for the Chicago Daily News he had advocated giving moral and economic aid to the Allies but was "opposed to sending American boys to fight in Europe."

Expressing the opinion that if England is defeated, the United States would be "far more gravely menaced in the Atlantic than we have ever been before," he said:

"We may be forced to choose between the threat in the Atlantic and the threat in the Pacific and it probably would be unwise to precipitate both at the same time."

As a result, he said he had revised his views urging a "strong policy" toward Japan.

Republican Leader McNary of Oregon said he would ask that senate action on the Knox-Stimson appointments be postponed until Monday because of the absence of many senators. It appeared likely that this course would be followed.

Stimson, like Knox, always has been a Republican.

Shows to Display Fireworks, Hold Kiddies' Matinee

A Fourth of July fireworks display will be one of the top feaures at the grounds of the Dodson's World's Fair Shows tomorrow night, officials announced today.

This will be in addition to the regular attractions of the show, which opened its Mansfield engagement Monday at the Armory grounds on Ashland road, and will close Saturday night.

A special "Junior's July Jubilee" has been arranged for Saturday when all children will be admitted to the grounds free from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., and all of the shows and rides will admit children for a nickel.

There will be a program of free circus acts, a band concert, vaudeville specialties and daylight fireworks throughout the day.

The Four Apollos, daring sky aerialists, and Le Garc, will perform on the giant tower and Capt. Phoenix will make his spectacular dive from a 110 foot platform into a small net.

"Gulliver's Island" is the name given to the area set aside for the tiny folks who visit the shows, and besides this there are a number of rides designed especially for small children.

POLICE PROBE THEFTS IN CITY

Automobile Broken Into, Bikes Stolen at Carnival Grounds, Owners Report.

A number of thefts at the carnival grounds on East Fourth and Ashland road, were reported to police last night.

J. H. Browning, Louisville, Ky., and William Parker, Cincinnati, who are in Mansfield to erect the fireworks display at the fairgrounds, told police that a black bag and clothing were stolen from their car at the grounds. The bag and contents were valued at $150.

A window had been broken to gain entrance to the car.

Three bicycles were reported stolen at the carnival grounds by their owners, Harold Yeager, 334 Fourth avenue; Carl Miller, Amoy, and Ted White, 4 Dewey avenue.

Herbert Harkins, of Murraysville, Ga., an employe of the show, is being held by police for investigation in connection with a complaint from an East Fourth street mother.

Harkins was arrested yesterday in a cafe after the woman had complained to police. He was charged with intoxication and fined $25 and costs in municipal court, and was held while police investigated the woman's charge.

Electric Power For South Side Homes Crippled

Homes in the southwest section of the city were forced to operate on low voltage electric power for eight hours yesterday when the Ohio Public Service company completed construction work on feeder lines.

Electric service wasn't off, but the power was reduced to where an electric razor wasn't of much value for beard-snipping.

Company officials said today that there had been construction work on the feed lines in the north section of the city, which necessitated putting high voltage lines feeding the southwest section out of service. The work will provide additional lines in case of an emergency.

The section affected by the low voltage was west of Main street and south of Glessner.

Evening courses, operating from two to three hours, five nights weekly, wil be open to persons now employed in shops who wish to further their knowledge of defense trades.

Through an act of congress setting up the program for the entire nation, $371,000 has been made available for the training courses in Ohio. Where established, the courses will be administered by local boards of education.

Only persons 18 years of age or older are eligible to enroll in the classes.

PURE OIL DEALER: It sure is! And a holiday is the time when a car really appreciates our new Solvenized* Pure-Pep Gasoline. It takes you farther on a gallon—and the extra chemical combination in it helps keep your motor free from excess carbon.

The reason is: Pure Oil dealers give service that gets "value received" out of every dollar you spend on your car. This holiday week-end is a good time to learn about our quality products and what they can do in your car—and to get acquainted with the blue-and-white stations with that "house-cleaned" look. Stop at your nearest Pure Oil dealer's—and see for yourself.

Marianne

CUTE as a button are those new lazy-daisy dresses which should be just right to wear on warm summer vacation days. . . . They come with red or blue daisy prints on white waffle pique grounds and feature deep pockets on the blouse and hipline. . . . And by the way, a surprise in one of the pockets is a pair of daisy-bordered sun glasses. . . . For informal afternoon wear, you'll find nothing more crisply cool and smart looking than one of those powder puff muslin frocks printed with a tiny floral design in multi-colors. . . . Fashioned with a shirtwaist style top, these dresses have very full, swing skirts. . . . Among the more dressy frocks that the downtown stores are showing for wear during the remainder of the warm summer months are those of black sheer crepe highlighted with white. . . . One style I saw while shopping yesterday had an eyelet embroidered collar on the square neckline as well as on the cuffs, while another model had a Peter Pan collar of pleated organdy with matching cuffs.

Probably the most graceful and attractive material for evening dresses is silk jersey, and consequently one of the most striking formals I've seen this summer season is made from white silk jeresy. . . . It is fashioned with a draped bodice and short tailored sleeves, while the full, accordion pleated skirt falls from a wide, shirred, girdled waistline. . . . To lend a touch of color to this gown, you might wear a colorful shawl over your shoulders. . . . If you go in for fluttery, feminine things, then you'd be more than pleased with one I saw yesterday—a large square shawl of fascine—which is really chiffon embossed with pastel tinted floral designs. . . . Another gay evening shawl, that would well highlight any white formal, is of white silk crepe printed with large, bright-colored iris and bordered with white fringe.

The very next time you stray out in the sunshine, take along a bottle of liquid sunshine. If you do, you'll be delighted with the condition of your skin when you return. . . . This liquid sunshine contains an ultra-violet filter to prevent burning and blistering, and although it is a non-greasy lotion, it guards against squint lines and dryness. . . . Fact is, all you need do, is apply this liquid before you go to the beach—and in between swims too, of course.

AND then if you're looking for a new make-up to wear with your summertime complexion, you'll find nothing nicer than "Tamale"—a dusky, languid beauty ensemble which enhances a suntanned skin and is equally attractive on blonds, brunets or redheads. . . . It can be obtained in powder, rouge and lipstick, and because it is manufactured by a long-famous perfume house, it comes in such popular scents as "Paris," "L'Aimant," "L'Origan" and "Emeraude."

While we're speaking of beauty hints, I mustn't forget to tell you about a new liquid nail conditioner which will be the light of your fingernails' lives from now on. . . . The daily use of this liquid (applied under the tip of the nail and around the cuticle) tends to nourish and strengthen the nail matrix, and thus helps you to grow stronger (and therefore, longer) fingernails—unblemished by chipping, cracking or peeling. . . . Oh yes, and your liquid nail enamel will stay on a lot longer without chipping too if you're faithful in the use of this conditioner.

WITH the Fourth of July an event of tomorrow, flag jewelry is especially timely. . . . You can buy red, white and blue rhinestone studded American flags—either singly or in pairs—to be worn as lapel trim, and you also can purchase sterling silver flag pins and buttons enameled in red, white and blue. . . . Other sterling silver jewelry also is being shown in the local shops now—the pins include figures of dogs, horses, elephants and boats, and then there are a variety of styles in bracelets too.

Separate Vacations Restful

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I adore my family, but—" reads a line from a letter from an old friend, a clergyman, who has a highly successful church and is loved by his congregation.

The quoted words do not apply to my friend but to the state of mind of a good many of his parishioners at this time of the year. And he asks me to write something about the advantages of families taking vacations away from each other in the dog days.

It seems the most devoted people get on each other's nerves during the summer months. And the best way of keeping devoted is to view your family's good qualities from a distance. And the long-distance survey should take at least two weeks.

The question is, of course, the expense involved. But my friend, who has done a good deal of scouting around for bargains, says these general vacations can be managed at a minimum cost. The one member of the family who should have a comfortable holiday is mother, or whoever it is who keeps the home fires burning.

In his scouting about for comfortable vacation spots, my friend has invoked the aid of the Y. W. C. A., fellow clergymen, small town Chambers of Commerce, and even rural libraries. He has found some mighty good places for $10 a week, and one amazing place in the mountains of West Virginia, for as low as $5. And this latter one happened to be best of all. The people had a farm, cows, and as they were nearly half a day's journey from the railroad they enjoyed taking boarders for company.

If father is a fisherman and enjoys roughing it, his vacation is easily disposed of. All he'd require would be a fisherman's license, a tent, a simple cooking outfit, portable cot or a sleeping bag, plus his beloved fishing tackle. He can buy his fresh vegetables and an occasional chicken from a nearby farm house, or if he's a devotee of the can opener, there is the village store. And he'll have his fish, if he happens to catch any.

Sister can usually hunt up a school friend to visit, or girls have enjoyed taking temporary jobs in other cities to get a little money ahead for their winter wardrobes

All sorts of camps welcome boys. Boy Scout camps average a little over a dollar a day. Churches have camps, also social clubs. In fact, it's pretty easy for a boy to get a vacation.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, July 4.

Much travel and stirring about, with the accent on enjoyment, celebration and excitement, may be expected from the lunar and mutual transits. The emotional and sentimental urges may be stressed, with elders cooperative and not at all averse to some romantic expressions of their own.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of moderately aggressive and adventurous endeavor, particularly in launching new ideas or promoting some very novel or even revolutionary projects. In these elders, groups or old institutions may be found heartily willing to lend assistance or practical support, even to considering endowments, trusts or substantial financing of objectives aiming at humane or social welfare.

A child born on this day should be solid, serious and steadfast despite much originality of thought and independence of action. It may be sensitive to criticism and resist control, but withal kindly, affectionate and gracious.

GALION—A daughter was born Tuesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Buchanan at the Good Samaritan hospital.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Lillian turned her head in the direction of the main road.

"It is a car," she answered me, "and coming fast. Scooch down, keep your hand on your little pistol, your ears open and your mouth closed. Don't dare to breathe, except noiselessly. Now, is this friend or foe that comes so swiftly?"

Two men were in the small but powerful roadster. One, a young chap, had a regulation chauffeur's uniform—a military one, while the other man, to all appearances well past middle age, was clad in the small uniform and headgear of an army officer, his eyes hidden behind auto sun glasses, while his face was equally well concealed by military moustachios and pointed beard.

Lillian's fingers dug into my wrist in a signal that meant "Watch closely!" but I did not need the admonition. My eyes and ears were strained to the utmost limit of attention.

"Is this the road you wanted?" the chauffeur asked, and one question was settled in our minds. This was no genuine army officer, to condone the careless, almost disrespectful query.

When the answer came we could not distinguish one word of it, for the elder man spoke in a hoarse whisper, whether from necessity or choice, we, of course, could not tell. But he pointed to the road down which we had backed our car and without more ado, the young chauffeur duplicated our own maneuver, turning his car partly around, and backing it into the wood road.

But to our relief—Lillian and I were fairly holding our respective breaths by this time—they backed their light car but a comparatively short distance into the lane, just enough, I judged, to make sure that it was well around a curve, so no part of its glistening surface was visible from the road.

"Is this far enough?" the chauffeur asked, and a moment later added: "Okay! I'll turn her off. As you say, this is as good a place as any to wait."

From the side of her mouth Lillian murmured to me, "They aren't far enough in to see our car." I nodded an assent, and then we sat silent, wondering about the disguised man.

We had little time for speculation, for down the road came a big high-powered car filled with men whose forbidding faces looked grim and determined. They drew up directly opposite the wood road and then alighted, grouping themselves around the car in such a fashion that its body made a shield for theirs. A smaller car with two men in it followed them closely, and drew up behind them. But neither the driver nor the man beside him alighted. Both concentrated upon the square box one held carefully in his hands with a chain and lock attached to his wrist. Once more Lillian's fingers bit into my arm, and I knew that she was sharing my belief that we were looking at the receptacle of Queen Olga's lost emeralds.

"Well! We're all here!" one of the men in the big car declared. "And I see you've got the swag, Bing!" He addressed the man with the box attached to his wrist. "Now the next thing is how long we've got to wait cooling our heels here, for those other birds."

"Maybe they's cooled their feet too long," one of the men said with a raucous laugh. "Maybe their tootsies are so cold they've decided to call it off."

"Not those birds," another man said. "I hear a car now. Remember, keep those gats handy."

"The Authority on Authorities"

A CHANCE TO DISCARD

EIGHT trumps divided evenly between your hand and your partner's make a much more desirable situation than five in one hand and three in the other, except in the one rare instance when the outstanding five are all held by one defender. If you have a suit of each kind between you, make a practice of choosing the 4-4 one over the 5-3, except when the former is a minor and the latter a major, and even sometimes then.

South didn't have a chance to make his heart game. West led his diamond A and 2. East, after taking the Q with the K, led a third diamond, which South ruffed with the 10. Now no matter how he played, he could not help losing one trick in spades an done in clubs, so was down one. There was absolutely no way to get rid of the losing club.

North explained that his partner's reverse bidding showed more hearts than spades, so that he knew the side had at least as many cards in hearts, plus a longer suit for purposes of safety. That is why he showed preference for hearts.

Peculiarly, the very reason why he preferred hearts should have been the reason for prefereing spades. With an even balance of trumps in the two hands, there then would have been an unbalance in the side suit. Consequently with spades as trumps the losing club could have been thrown from the North hand on a set-up heart, then South's own losing club could have been ruffed.

More than 100 girls appear in "Flight Angels" which is now showing at the Ohio. Featuring Virginia Bruce and Jane Wyman, the cast includes a number of mere men headed by Dennis Morgan, Ralph Bellamy and Wayne Morris. Jane portrays a young stewardess who is much more interested in catching Wayne that she is in the future of Federal Airlines. Morris is seen as a fellow pilot of Morgan, whose principal interest is a new stratosphere plane, which the two of them have designed.

O. Henry's Hero In Trouble.

Framed by a crooked judge. Mixed up with two jealous women. Hunted by a hundred enemies. These are only some of the exciting situations confronting the Cisco Kid in his newest adventure in "Lucky Cisco Kid" which is showing at the Madison. Cesar Romero has the title role in the O. Henry's colorful caballero story. The co-feature is "Girl in 313," which is a mystery picture starring Florence Rice and Kent Taylor.

Boyhood Life and Western.

With its theme woven around one of the most normal phases of boyhood—the craving for a dog—"Little Orvie," featuring young John Sheffield in the famous Booth Tarkington character, is definitely classed as comedy drama. The story deals with the adventures of an eight-year old in a midwestern town. This and "Pioneers of the West" are showing Thursday at the Park. The 3 Mesquiteers, Robert Livingston, Raymond Hatton and Duncan Renaldo are seen in the latter picture.

Adventures In Sports.

Auto-racing, one of the most thrilling and dangerous of sports, affords the story basis for Richard Arlen and Andy Devine's co-starring picture "Danger on Wheels," which shows Thursday at the Ritz. Comedy and romance are blended into the theme. The co-feature is "Green Hell," which is a story of adventure in the upper part of the Amazon country actually known as Green Hell.

Propagating Catmint.

Nepeta mussini, or catmint, is an old garden favorite, used in the rock garden, for bedding purposes or as a border plant. It can be shaped by shearing for formal effects.

Catmint can easily be propagated from cuttings. The best time to make such cuttings is when the stem breaks easily instead of bending, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. When the stem crushes instead of snapping, it is too young for cutting purposes, and when it bends without breaking it is too old for good cuttings.

Use cuttings of the new growth and cut one-fourth to one-half inch below a leaf or pair of leaves. Remove the lower leaves of the cutting and plant in sand, in a cold frame. For the first few weeks protect catmint cuttings from drafts and sun. Keep the sand moist and give the cuttings ample ventilation.

When making cuttings plant them immediately or they will wilt. Do not try to keep them from wilting by placing them in a pail of water as this will do more harm than good.

Arnold Pitches Braves to 3-1 Victory Over Fremont

Braves Hurler Fans 10 Men, Allows 6 Hits

Mansfield Fair-Haired Boy Also Paces Hitters By Getting Two for Two.

By GEORGE SATTLER

AFTER several shaky starts this season, Pitcher Bob Arnold put himself on firm ground with the Braves' fans last night.

Showing a brand of ball rarely seen at the Fairground this year, Arnold dazzled the Fremont Green Sox with ten strike-outs as Mansfield spanked the Sox, 3 to 1.

Throughout the nine frames the Braves' fair-haired boy found himself in trouble only once and that was in the fourth when the Fremont lads scored their lone tally.

Sewell, first man up for the Green Sox, walked. Then Haas singled to center, with Sewell advancing to third. Arnold struck out Gerkan. Lance, Fremont catcher, singled deep into left field scoring Sewell.

With two men on and only one out, it looked like the Green Sox would at least tie it up. But then it happened—Arnold coolly struck out both Kavanaugh and White, retiring the side.

From then on, Bob Arnold had smooth sailing. Only two more hits were chalked up against him. One came in the fifth and the other in the sixth, but neither brought about a dangerous situation. The Green Sox managed to get only six hits in the nine innings.

All three of the Braves' runs came in the first inning. Hal Hundemer, the lead off man, blasted out a double. Howard Beals went out on a fly. Then Stover followed with a single to left, scoring Hundemer. Woodling, the next man up, stepped into a fast one for a single and Stover romped home.

Walt Missler then smashed a safety into center field and Woodling scored, making the third run. Missler then was out in an attempt to steal second.

Not satisfied with striking out ten Green Sox and hurling the Braves to their victory over Fremont, Bob Arnold also stole the batting show by getting two hits out of two trips to the platter. Woodling and Hundemer each got two for three to share batting honors with Arnold.

Pepped up by their victory last night, the Braves are looking forward to turning the same trick against the Tiffin Mud Hens this evening at the Fairground. Tonight's game has been set aside by the management as "Ashland" night, honoring Russ Benton, an Ashlander, who will join the Braves pitching staff.

Lima rode the crest of a nine-game winning streak last night by sweeping a four-game series with the Findlay Oilers to increase their lead in the league.

Fostoria downed Tiffin again last night in a determined drive to get themselves out of the basement.

Baer Wins Battle of 'Two Tired Old Men'

By GAYLE TALBOT

JERSEY CITY—(AP)—Two tired, fat old fighting men slugged each other into a state of utter exhaustion out on the Jersey marshes last night, and finally one of them, Tony Galento, was unable to go on any longer.

The fat tavern keeper was sitting on his stool, blowing blood like a harpooned whale, when the bell rang to start the eighth round. His handlers wouldn't let him go out, so the referee raised Max Baer's hand. It went into the books as a technical knockout in the eighth.

The fight—and it was a hard one while it lasted—proved only that there isn't a heavyweight in the world today worthy of challenging Joe Louis for the championship.

Baer, exuberant in his dressing room afterward, was shouting his defiance of Louis and demanding another shot at the big Negro to whom he once surrendered while on his knees. But Max is about six years too late. If he is smart, he will not get into the ring with Louis.

Max fought about as brainy a fight last night as one would hope to see. He took his time, dodged Galento's mighty lunges, and steadily punched the fat man into a state bordering on helplessness. But, even so, he did not look like a fighter to face the Louis thunderbolts.

Tony, who had been a solid favoriate found the handicap of 244½ pounds of fat and a barroom cut on his chin too much. The pounds slowed him to where he was awkward in the clinches and a sucker for Baer's sharp blasts. The cut, administered originally by a beer glass pegged by his brother, opened up round by round until finally he was choking and blowing froth.

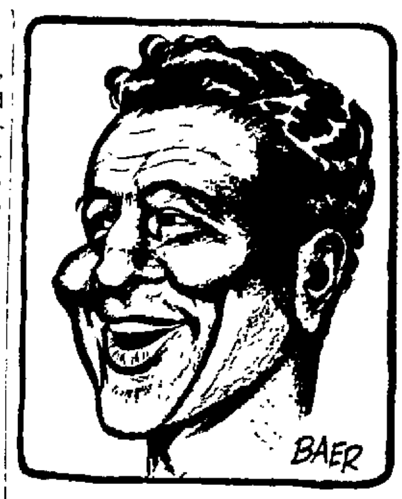
Some near Tony's corner claim they heard him mumble



that he had enough. I was about four feet from him, but didn't hear that. Tony, through a heavy bandage about his mouth, said he had broken his left hand in the second round.

That, on the Associated Press score card, was the only round Galento won. Max nearly floored his floundering opponent with a tremendous right to the chin at the start of the sixth round, and he gave Tony an awful going-over in the seventh, even smacking him a couple after the bell.

A crowd of 22,711 paid $98,004 to see the slaughter.

'B' Golfers To End 1st Round

Enter Final Frame Next Week; J. A. C. In Lead.

Junior Association of Commerce's foursome is out in front in The News-Journal Class "B" league. But it wouldn't take much to dislodge them.

With the end of the first round coming up Friday, the JAC's lead the Tucker Furnitures by only one lean point and the third-place City News team by only three.

The lead being that narrow, almost anything may happen during the course of the second round which opens up next week. An important win by either of the two teams would sky-rocket it out in front.

On Friday, the Junior Association of Commerce will tangle with the Tinkey Lumbers, while the Tucker Furnitures meet the Central Fruit foursome.

Redlegs Back In Second

Cardinals Blank Cincinnati 4 to 0 to Sweep the Two-Game Series.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Reds, driven out of first place in the National league race by the St. Louis Cardinals, returned home today to figure out how it happened and prepare for celebration of the Fourth with a double bill in Pittsburgh.

Against the Pirates they hoped to run their string of consecutive twin triumphs to four and regain the top position with ace hurler Bucky Walters and Junior Thompson on the mound.

The Cardinals, who seem to have developed the kick of a Missouri mule after a poor start, blanked the Reds 4-0 last night and swept a two-game series.

Fiddler Bill McGee held the Reds to seven hits and clinched his own victory with a single which brought in two runs.

The triumph put the Reds behind Brooklyn, to whom they have lost the league lead seven times this season.

The Cards scored their first run on Terry Moore's triple and Mickey Owen's single in the fourth inning.

They counted three more in the eighth of four hits and an error against Paul Derringer, who threw into center field trying to catch a runner off second base.

In dropping his third game in a row, Derringer allowed 13 hits, including two doubles and a triple.

Hermans Win 8th Straight

Mansfield Club Licks Shelby Salesbook, 14-3.

The highly-touted Sons of Herman softball combination scored its eighth straight victory last night by walloping the Shelby Salesbook club, 14 to 3, at the Liberty park diamond.

Fullager and Carver shared the mound duties for the Hermans, allowing the Shelby outfit only five hits.

Henrich, Herman first baseman, paced the field by getting three hits out of four trips to the plate. Hazelwood went the route for the Shelby Salesmen.

Taking three of the four scheduled matches, the Printers maintained their lead over the Long Barmen, who netted three points last night to none for the Schmid Tires. The match between Joe Mayer, number one man on the Tires, and Carl Kushin, number one man for the Long Bar foursome, was postponed.

Pacing off the inside nine for a 35, J. Carr of the Long Bar copped low-scoring honors, to defeat Gene Zediker of the Tiremen, who banged out a 39.

Following close behind Carr were the Linster brothers, Pete and Nick, who shared second place scoring laurels with a pair of 36's. O. Frantz of the Long Bar managed a 38 and R. Rachel of the Oaks club stroked a 37.

Those who made 39's, besides Zediker were P. Zeides, Greystone Nite club, and Al Hager, Yuncker Brothers.

Indians Lose Again

Tribe Topple From First as Browns Win, 5-3; Feller Hurls Today.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians moped today with a bad case of St. Louis blues.

The American league ego deflaters — Fred Haney's Browns—toppled the Tribe from first place by slapping a 5 to 3 defeat on the Redskins yesterday.

It was the second time this season the Browns routed a league leader. First it was the Boston Red Sox. But the Tribe's manager, Oscar Vitt, decided to lose no further ground and nominated Bob Feller for the job of turning back St. Louis in the final game of their series today.

The speedballer seeks his 13th victory. Southpaw Emil Bildilli drew the assignment for St. Louis.

The Indians hit all right yesterday, but not when it counted. They collected 13 safe blows off Vernon Kennedy while the Browns reached three Indian hurlers for 10. But among the 10 were three homers which counted for all the Browns' runs, and the Indians had 12 men left on bases. Kennedy won his own game then with a homer off Nate Andrews with Johnny Berardino on base.

Singles by Beau Bell, Ben Chapman and Ray Mack gave Cleveland its first run in the fourth. Mack's single, a walk and Lou Boudreau's double produced the second in the sixth, and in the eighth, with the bases filled, the Tribe scored only one run—on Roy Weatherly's infield out.

Tinkey Ace Hurls One-Hit Game

Holding the Shelby McGaw Coals to only one hit Winebrenner, Tinkey ace, pitched the Lumbers to an 11 to 0 victory last night at Forest Garden diamond.

Winebrenner mowed down 17 of the Shelby batters, allowing only one walk. Yought, Shelby shortstop, got the only hit, a single in the fourth inning.

Yarman was on the mound for the Shelby outfit, giving the Tinkeys 12 hits.

CHAPTER XVI

The master of ceremonies knew Bob, knew he was scheduled to speak, and so at once presented him and the girls. The president gave them a hearty handshake—then to their delight held them near for ten minutes talking in quite casual and friendly manner. Rosemary felt precisely like a stage-frightened little girl and knew she looked it, but she took heart from Sue's remarkable poise. The whole thing, Rosemary admitted to herself, was terribly exciting. How utterly unlike the days when a celebrity comes to Broadway!

To the other side of the president came a bearded man in lumberjack outfit, and he began speaking.

"Mistuh President, suh, we hev arranged a little axe-tossin' contest for yore entertainment, an'd ef you are ready, why we are too."

"Fine! Fine! I'm ready!"

Everybody squared around to give space.

A team of six woodsmen, it developed, were to throw axes at huge logs that had been stood upright across a little arm or branch canon. This branch was some 50 feet wide, and at least 800 feet deep, straight down. Distance of the throw was nearer 60 feet, and the canyon hazard this way made the stunt more spectacular.

The man who had spoken to the president stepped out first. He took a single-bit axe, twirled it twice around his head rapidly, and let fly. Z-z-z-z-z-z, bing. It stuck in a log as neatly as if the man had carried it there.

In turn, then, all the performers demonstrated their skill. And it was extraordinary skill. People crowded closer and closer, some climbing on top of cars and up in trees, standing on the rim benches, craning their necks and pushing against big rocks. A white urchin led two Indian boys right down front by crawling between grown people's legs, and when the president saw them he laughed and invited them to sit on the edge of the platform at his feet.

During this episode Monty Montgomery was standing alone, having lost his party in the press of people, but he glanced across now to see five or six newspaper and government attaches talking and laughing in low tones to Sue and Rosemary. Rosemary, he observed, held their interest most; or so it seemed.

The thought instantly disturbed Monty. He somehow wanted her to be popular, but at the same time he didn't like it. It made him uneasy, and he couldn't say why. He gazed at her raptly for a few minutes — completely forgetting the axe-throwers' demonstration—and realized again that Rosemary was an extraordinarily pretty girl. He told himself that never in his career as college student or professor had he seen one so lovely.

His reveries were interrupted by a most astonishing noise.

"OOM-OOM! OOM-OOM! OOM-OOM—OOM-OOM!"

From somewhere nearby a powerful tom-tom began a commanding rhythm, which dominated all else and set human bloodtingling with its savage overture.

Monty saw that the axe throwing was over, and that Indian dances were about to begin. Even now from behind the president's platform came a painted redskin, naked save for his feathers and primitive G-string. In a moment six others followed. The leader instantly joined the drum ryhthm with a weird chanting of his own.

"AH-yah-yah-yah, AH-yah-yah-yah!" His brown-bronze face was thrown upward as he sang to the gods of yesteryear, hearkening back to the days when America was a mere embryo nation and the doings of civilized men were unknown. Ah, yah, ah-yah, Ah-yah-yah-yah! Rosemary, standing beside Monty now because he had edged ahound to be near her, felt the oddly penetrating quality of the chanting, noted the ONE-one-two-three beats that moved soon into a variable cadence as fascinating as it was hard to understand. The dancers did not seem to say any words in any language, they only chanted as they swayed their bodies and stomped their moccasined feet in perfect time.

"Glo—ree-e-e-e, Monty!" Rosemary breathed, in genuine awe.

"Yes indeed!" he murmured, spellbound.

Bob King, oddly enough, was looking on with a funny sort of grin, as if in tolerant amusement. Sue held Bob's arm but she was not looking steadily at him. She glanced at the president once, and noted that he looked at the dancers with rapt, serious attention such as one might give a minister or a choir in church. It occurred to Sue that this was only proper and fair. She wished Bob wouldn't grin.

Because people had shifted position to form a big standing ring around the dancers, a lot of spectators had lost their point of vantage. Some could not see at all, and around the outer edge of the crowd there was a restive stirring. More people climbed on cars, rocks and trees.

The show was taking place not more than 60 or 70 feet from the canyon rim, and right on the very edge of the precipice there were some young trees, saplings that streaked gracefully upward with a false front of strength, like prideful youths. Because of prevailing winds, most of these leaned outward over the great gorge. Under their tiptops was a drop of almost half a mile to the first inner level of the canyon.

Of course no adult, nor even any intelligent child, dared climb these rim saplings. But in the excitement there during the dances one six-year-old Indian boy lost normal caution. Determined to see whatever there was to see in the grownups' circle, he skinned right up one of those saplings on the rim.

It was the abrupt swaying which caught Monty Montgomery's eye.

In a flash Monty took in the situation, saw the danger.

"Oh I say—my God!"

It was the nearest to swearing—or praying—that Monty had ever done aloud. He and Rosemary were standing within ten feet of the president, and his shout and pointing finger commended everybody's attention at once.

The chanting stopped. The sapling roots were creaking and cracking, its weighted top slowly swinging outward and down.

For a long eternity everybody seemed petrified there. The little boy in the tree top stared back at them, terror in his huge black eyes.

The sapling tree that the Indian boy had climbed was not much bigger than a baseball bat. It would have broken instantly with any man who tried to skin up it, but the lad in its tender branches was a six-year-old, a cute little Hopi fellow with a red band around his head and purple velvet blouse carrying concho buttons of silver.

Under ordinary circumstances he, a forest child, would have realized the danger himself. He would have known better than to climb any tree that overhung a precipice this way. The drop under him here at the rim of the Grand Canyon was at least eighteen hundred feet. However, today's festivities had been extraordinary; even his parents were separated from him in the picturesque crowd which had come to greet the paleface president. He had been squeezed back from the front positions where he could see, and when the ceremonial dances started he had thoughtlessly climbed the tree nearest at hand. The tree hadn't bent over at first. But as he pulled agilely to the top, it suddenly cracked and swayed.

"Oh! Oh, I say—LOOK!"

Monty Montgomery again shouted, then darted across the little open space there. Plowing through the crowd, he was first at the rim although Rosemary, Sue and Bob were at his heels.

Monty shouted then a third time. "He's in danger! Call the police! The—get a ladder, somebody. Quickly! The—fire department!"

Monty was very pale, and was calling out in a semifrenzy that sounded above other excited exclamations. Two or three women screamed, and a newsreel cameraman on top of a car was yelling incoherently and pointing.

And yet, even though his voice was commanding here, Monty's words were foolish commands. The police? The fire department? These were the logical thoughts of a city-reared man. Any person born to skyscrapers and pavement thinks first of the organized law in moments of emergency. But in the village of Grand Canyon, Arizona, located in the midst of a great virgin pine forest, there is no police headquarters poised to send out a riot squad or emergency car. There is no hook and ladder truck with a dozen trained men. In this community, as throughout the wilderness around it, people must solve their problems in their own individual way, facing each as it arises and seeing what is to be done without howling for help. Sheer necessity has forced people in the open country to be resourceful and self-reliant.

The little tree by this time had reversed itself.

Its top, almost straight up a moment ago, had swung in a big arc cut over the canyon and now was pointing toward the canyon bottom, almost straight down. Roots had been exposed, although enough of them still clung in the rocks and soil to keep the tree from falling.

The little Indian boy had done precisely as an animal would—reversed himself with the tree's change. His muscles had acted involuntarily. He now gripped the tender top limbs which pointed down, hugging close to the trunk which wasn't any bigger than a broom handle where he was. If he let go, certain death awaited him and he knew it now. His baby eyes shone with terror.

In the excited stir, which seemed like an eternity but which really was a matter of seconds, Mont Montgomery cried out foolishly but, for once in his life, he was also able to act. Bob King was shouting something now—something about a rope — but Monty had an idea of his own.

A rope would be a logical thought here, with cowboy lariats and harness lines available, and yet . . .

Montgomery looked quickly at the tree roots. A sapling, he had already discovered this month, is stronger than it looks. Roots and limbs alike are small and soft, but extraordinarily tough. Tensile strength especially is great, and this tree doubtless would hold a man too, on a straight pull, Monty was reasoning. And—plainly—it was a matter of seconds until the terrified boy must let go.

"Yes—y-yes a rope!" Monty muttered—and before anybody could reach to hold him he himself slid down the reversed tree!

I TELL YOU, THE "PARROHEN" SPOKE TO ME JUST AS PLAINLY AS A PERSON,.... EXCEPT THAT IT HAS A SLIGHT PARROT ACCENT!.... IT WAS ON THE NEST AND SAID IT WOULD CALL ME WHEN THE EGG WAS LAID!... S'HELP ME, THAT'S TRUE!—.... WHY DO YOU LOOK AT ME SO ODDLY?
THIS IS THE DAY WE ALL KNEW WAS COMING!... —EDGE AROUND IN BACK OF HIM, BUNNY, AND THROW A TACKLE ON HIS KNEES,... AND I'LL ROLL HIM UP IN THIS NET!...
NO!... HUMOR HIM FIRST!... GET HIM TO THINKING HE'S A FLY AND WE'LL TAP HIM WITH THESE SWATTERS!
HE HASN'T DISCOVERED THE HOSE TO THE NEST YET =

STOCK MARKET UNCERTAIN ON HOLIDAY EDGE

Early Declines Wiped Out By Noon Trading On Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK The stock market poised itself uncertainly today on the edge of the July Fourth holiday and share averages got exactly nowhere.

Early declines largely disappeared toward the fourth hour in dwadling trading. Some confidence was shown by a rise of more than three cents in the "free" British pound.

Among the more active shares in thin dealings—holding their own or moving fractionally ahead—were New York Shipbuilding, Packard, Loft, International Mercantile Marine, Allied Chemical, Pennsylvania railroad, American Telephone and Youngstown Sheet.

Bonds and commodities generally gained slightly.

The magazine Iron Age suggested that the full force of the national defense program on the steel industry will not be felt for three months.

Also discussed in board rooms was a report that in June air lines flew more than 100,000,000 revenue passenger miles, for the first time in history.

batant ships for which congress thus far has provided funds.

In the last three weeks, the navy noted, work has been ordered started on two battleships, four aircraft carriers, 15 cruisers, 38 destroyers, 28 submarines and five auxiliaries.

Altogether 499,435 tons were involved, costing $1,140,000,000.

Even before today's contracts, a recapitulation showed that the army and navy have put their pens to more that $1,000,000,000 worth of defense contracts during the last month.

The contracts—covering items from beans to bombers, solder to submarines — represent, for the most part, the first big block of expenditure commitments in the $4,500,000,000 cash program voted by congress for the fiscal year which began July 1.

NAZI REQUEST ACCEPTED FOR FOUR NATIONS

Diplomats to Withdraw From Norway, Belgium, Holland And Luxembourg.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—While no official announcement has been made on the subject, it was learned today that the administration sees no other course than to yield to Germany's request that all American diplomatic missions be withdrawn from the conquered territories of Norway, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg

Whether these envoys will be sent to join the exiled governments of these countries in London or whether they will be recalled to the United States has not yet been decided It is considered most likely that they will return to this country, as the regular London embassy can keep in contact with the various governments now functioning in Great Britain

Those affected by the German order are Ambassador John Cudahy in Brussels; Minister George Gordon in The Hague; and Mrs J. Borden Harriman, minister to Norway, together with their staffs. Cudahy also serves as minister to Luxembourg.

State department officials pointed out that, since the German invasion of these countries the American missions in them have except for brief intervals, had no telegraphic or telephonic contact with Washington except through Berlin.

Germany's request transmitted through the American embassy in Berlin, pointed out that as governments were not functioning in the capitals of the countries named it was useless for the United States to keep diplomatic officers in them. It was requested that these officials be withdrawn by July 15

Unlike the German action requiring consular as well as diplomatic officials to leave Poland the present order does not affect consulates

The United States now has and presumably will continue to maintain, consulates in Brussels and Antwerp Belgium Amsterdam and Rotterdam Holland and Oslo and Bergen Norway Officers in these consulates will be able to render aid to stranded American citizens and keep the state department informed of conditions

Police, Passersby Rescue Child From Burning Trailer

A four-year-old child was saved from a blazing trailer on Ashland road last night, when bystanders and police broke into the trailer and rescued the child

The trailer is owned by Roland Richards, of Chicago, press representative with Dodson's Worlds Fair Shows, snowing at the Armory grounds on Ashland road

Marilyn Dianne Richards 4 was asleep in the trailer alone when it caught fire from an electric immersion heater which the Richards' had forgotten to disconnect according to police Both Mr and Mrs Richards were on the carnival grounds.

Patrolman William Colby happened along on his motorcycle shortly after 8.30 p m when a bystander stopped him and told him the trailer was on fire and that a child was locked inside. The child was calling for help.

Colby and two men from a refreshment stand broke the window in the door and reached in and unlocked it Marilyn was at the door, having passed the lavatory room where the fire was gaining headway Colby grabbed a fire extinguisher on the wall and tried to extinguish the blaze at about the same time the city fire department, which had been called earlier, arrived

Richards said today that Mrs Richards had put Marilyn to bed and had gone over to the carnival's dining tent for supper when the fire broke out He said [illegible] damage to the trailer would amount to about $100

Up and Down THE STREET

Herbert Jones was taking part of the credit last night for the unusual address on the relation of America to the European war made at Westbrook Country club by Herbert Fraser, former Mansfielder and now professor of economics at Swartmore. Jones explained that part of Fraser's effectiveness as a speaker came from the shape of his head. "And," said Jones, "I had something to do with that. When we were kids he always wanted to be a trapeze performer and one day I was holding him by his feet, suspended head downward from the top of a tree, when his aunt called, "Drop that boy" "And," concluded Jones, "I did"

TALKS ON GRAVE U. S. PROBLEMS

Fraser Tells Rotary-Kiwanis Party British Defeat Would Leave Nation 'On Spot.'

Facing a gravely uncertain future the United States is now showing the same apathy for which we have been criticising England and France This was the challenging statement made last night at Westbrook Country club by Herbert Fraser professor of economics at Swarthmore college and former Mansfielder as he addressed the combined Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at their annual golf-dinner-bridge meeting

Fraser explained that the foreign policy of the U S is the simplest of all leading nations It is stated in the Monroe doctrine he said, and contains two principles

First freedom for development and preservation of democratic ideals in the western hemisphere, And second a system of hemispherical defense

"Our hemispherical defense has always been dependent on the good will of the British navy," Fraser declared, pointing out that defeat for Great Britain 'in the present European war would leave us in the embarrassing position of trying to defend two oceans with a one-ocean navy.

He declared that the attitude of Republican presidential nominee on co-operation with Britain is quite similar to that of the Roosevelt administration and expressed the hope that Roosevelt would concern himself with being president in the coming months when the future of the U. S may be shaped

'It is my hope' he said 'that the president will not become too deeply involved in a political campaign at this crucial time

"All Americans must wake up to the grave dangers confronting them, he concluded

Following the address members of the two clubs paired off for a bridge duel which netted the Rotarians a total of 23,290 points to the Kiwanis' 22,660

Rotary club members also won the afternoon golf matches with a total of 36 points against 21 points for the Kiwanis club

Herbert Jones who along with George Smith was in charge of the golf and bridge matches reported that the meeting attracted the largest attendance yet recorded for one of the joint sessions Clifford G Hilber president of Rotary presided

PATIENT USES GUN TO SETTLE OLD GRIEVANCE

'Wanted to Make Him Suffer' Akron Man Explains After Surrender.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Shot by a disgruntled former patient who 'wanted to make him suffer as I have' Dr Louis J Karnosh 48 noted Cleveland psychiatrist, lay critically wounded today

A single bullet pierced the right side of the doctor's neck after he answered his assailant's ring at the door of his home in Shaker Heights fashionable suburb, shortly before midnight

An hour later a man who gave his name as Abraham Vartanian, 40, of Akron, surrendered at police headquarters and reported he had shot the doctor, officers said.

Vartanian was held for investigation pending the outcome of Dr Karnosh's wound Attendants at Cleveland Clinic hospital where he was taken said the bullet apparently lodged in the vertebrae and described his condition as serious

Ironically Karnosh's wife directed her husband's assailant to their home Capt Fred W Clarke of the Shaker Heights police department said

Mrs Karnosh and a woman friend were walking near the Karnosh home when a man approached and asked its location A few minutes later the two women heard a shot and hurried to the house where they found Dr Karnosh lying in the entrance hall

Detective Carl Zicarelli quoted Vartanian as saying he wanted to make the phychiatrist "suffer" for a report he wrote after treating him for an industrial injury received at an Akron rubber company

Vartanian asserted that as a result of the report his compensation for the injury was reduced to $20 a week and this was not enough for support of his wife and children, the officer said.

The Akron man did not want to kill Dr Karnosh "but wanted only to wound him,' Zicarelli quoted the suspect

Dr Karnosh has been resident phychiatrist at Cleveland City hospital since 1923 and associate professor of nervous and mental diseases at Western Reserve university since 1937

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—John Barrymore says "The Great Profile" is not—definitely not—a life history of John Barrymore. He admits, with a lift of the screen's most expressive eyebrows, that the character does bear coincidental resemblances

"In the first place he says with a sardonic chuckle, "the hero is a ham actor In the second, he's nuts In the third he is forever hearing the clank of jail doors and begins to miss them when they stop They become like the music of cymbals to him, ha' I myself have lived lately amid so much noise—the sound of the city—that when I sought quiet I couldn't rest . . . But no—it's not the story of my life This picture—and it's very funny—is a compendium of all hams!

John is attired as Hamlet sitting on the sidelines of his set, but he's not doing it straight—"a ham Hamlet" he explains

The "great profile" is not the heroic figure he once was, but there's life, and plenty of it, in the old boy yet And his fund of stories—related with gusto and liberally sprinkled with picaresque inimitable profanity has not been depleted Mention of Winston Churchill sets him going, recalling the first time he met the man who is now Britain's war chieftain It was at a party in Scotland at which they played charades and Churchill—'really a great fellow for fun with a marvelous humor"—got himself up as a buxom scrublady, complete with red nose and generously padded chest

Speaking Churchill reminds him — I saw an old friend of mine today Tiny Jones . . ."

Tiny is a bright-eyed diminutive Welsh woman who plays bits and parts and is a long-time Barrymore favorite When John was making "The Man from Blankley's 10 years ago the same Winston Churchill visiting in Hollywood called on Barrymore on the set It made quite a good story at the time because John presented one friend to the visitor and casually ignored the others—his fellow actors, the director, and all else but Tiny

"Tiny,' recalls John, "was all aflutter when she saw Churchill and asked if she might shake his hand. They sat down together and talked quite a while. All I could hear was Tiny saying, 'Oh, no, Mr. Churchill' "

John asked Tiny later what they'd been discussing and Tiny said "Fruit, Mr. Barrymore. Fruit. He was asking if it were true what he heard about the fruit out here, and I was telling him it wasn't."

Mrs Barrymore, the famous Elaine is not in "The Great Profile Mary Beth Hughes is the girl, and one of John's confreres in comedy is Gregory Ratoff, temporarily abandoning direction to resume his old career.

Ratoff thinks John is "wan-der-vull" and John thinks Ratoff is 'marvelous" Ratoff is cast as the great ham's manager, and they have a scene in which Ratoff expostulates violently with his Hamlet for his latest escapade.

It is interesting to watch Ratoff, the genius of the sputtered accent, pitted against Barrymore, the genius of the genus ham Ratoff is roaringly funny, but the chances are that Barrymore - with eyebrow-lifting and imperious gestures— will be funnier.

another blow Monday night at Germany's 26,000-ton warship Scharnhorst, twice before reported damaged.

A German announcement in Amsterdam said Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, commander-in-chief of the Netherlands armed forces who surrendered May 14, had been sent to Germany as a prisoner of war following German dissatisfaction over unidentified demobilization "disturbances."

It warned that "sharpest countermeasures" would be taken in the German-occupied country if there were further disturbances.

At Washington, President Roosevelt established close control over exports of vital war materials to avert any shortage that might interfere with American armament.

Persian Tie-Up With Nazis Hinted.

BULLETIN

ISTANBUL—(AP)—The Turkish government denied today reports that Soviet Russia had demanded of Turkey concessions concerning the Dardanelles.

ISTANBUL — (AP) — Well-informed Turkish quarters asserted today they expected a German-inspired drive against the oil-rich state of Iraq, which has been virtually a British protectorate.

These quarters regard spread of the European war to the Near and Middle East as imminent.

Iraq, it was said, already has asked Turkey what help could be expected in event of possible aggression by Iran (Persia), which now, according to informed opinion here, is wholly pro-Nazi.

The Shah of Iran, Reza Khan Pahlavi, is feared to have plans for carving a mid-eastern empire for himself by collaborating with the Germans in their long-range program for a "march to the east."

Iraq was reported fearing that the Persians will first claim the province of Kerbila, which they consider theirs since it is the center of Shiite (Persian) Mohammedanism, and then go after Mosul to cut off British oil supplies in the east.

Japanese Move Into Indo-China.

LONDON — (INS) — Japanese troops entered French Indo-China yesterday, occupying a southern town, according to a Moscow radio announcement, the London Daily Telegraph said today.

(Editor's Note: A Moscow radio broadcast picked up by NBC in New York said that Japanese troops advancing toward the border of French Indo-China occupied the city of Lungchow in the southwest part of Kwangsi province.

(The Russian broadcaster credited "Japanese sources" for this information, and explained Lungchow lies only a few miles from the French Indo-China frontier.)

The London Daily Herald reported from Shanghai that French authorities capitulated to Japanese demands for the right to search persons and premises within the French concession there and to arrest Chinese and hand them over to the Nanking (Japanese sponsored) government without trial.

This dispatch also reported that the French were surrendering control over Chinese courts in the concession.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation, said the Herald, Americans living in the concession cabled the state department in Washington urging immediate strengthening of United States naval and marine forces to maintain the status quo.

Britain Refuses Japanese Demand.

TOKYO —(AP)— Great Britain has refused the Japanese demand that the arms route through British Burma to the Chinese forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek be closed, it was reliably reported tonight.

(Britain is considering "questions that would arise with the United States" if she acceded "in any way" to the Japanese demand, R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, announced in the house of commons.)

The refusal of the London government was said to have been conveyed in a note just received by the British ambassador to Tokyo, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie. The reply still was to be delivered to the foreign office.

Sir Robert transmitted to London his views on the Japanese demand and has asked for further instructions.

This British-Japanese dispute is a factor in the tense Japanese political situation already marked by strong representations of army leaders to the cabinet over policy to be followed in the Far East in the light of Allied defeats in Europe.

The Military leaders are said to have expressed dissatisfaction with the stand taken by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, apparently holding that his plan for an "Asiatic sphere" dominated by Japan is not strong enough.

Saturday night a group of leading Japanese army men, said the newspaper Nichi Nichi, decided the war in Europe had presented Japan a "golden opportunity" in which she must take a "strong attitude."

Instructions concerning this "strong attitude" were sent to all army corps.

forbidden by law to handle fireworks.

Admission to the fairground will be free, as will the "super colossal" display of fireworks in the evening. There will be a nominal charge to the grand stand and box seats in order to help defray expenses, according to association officials.

The fireworks display, which gets under way at 9:15 p. m. will include 70 spectacular set pieces and 1,037 bombs and shells. The set pieces will include such scenes as "In An Old Dutch Garden," "Spirit of '76," "Down On The Farm" and "America Forever," all in brilliant colors.

The afternoon show gets under way at 2:30 and after an address by Mayor W. J. Locke, there will be a bicycle race, a contest for the best decorated bicycles and one for the best decorated doll carriage; a penny hunt, and a modern musical revue presented by the Madge Kinsey Players.

At 7 p. m. there will be seven boxing bouts, staged by Friendly House and out-of-town opponents, and at 8 p. m. there will be an hour's show put on by McVey Post, American Legion, in which the patriotic theme will be emphasized. John Grabler will be in charge of the Legion show.

The Legion Drum Corps and the Senior high school band will take part in the evening program.

Changed Name, But Not Much--Mrs. Willkie

This Indiana girl was Edith Wilk . . .

Wendell changed her name to Willkie.

"So you're the girl Wendell's going to marry?" Wendell Willkie's mother said in 1917, when the man who has just stampeded the Republican party was on the trail of his bride-to-be.

Mrs. Willkie was talking to Edith Wilk, spunky, fair-haired, blue-eyed girl from Rushville, Ind., a few miles from Elwood, the Willkie home town.

Edith Wilk stammered, blushed.

"Oh, no, no," she protested. "It must be a mistake. I've just met him. And—well, I never heard anything about it."

"No mistake," laughed Mrs. Willkie. "Wendell's got it all settled. He's told me he had met the girl he was going to marry. He said it would be easy, because your name is already Wilk."

Pranks And Prospects.

This was Edith Wilk's introduction to life with that man-always-in-a-hurry who, then, never seemed to know where he was going.

Later on, in 1918, after Wendell had volunteered and before he went to France with the field artillery, she went to training camp to visit her fiance. Her aunt went along as a chaperone and it was the aunt who came away starry-eyed.

"He's—why he's going to be a great man," said aunty. The Willkies were married before "Win" went to France.

"Win" Willkie had a way with people, only in his youth he was always messing up his promising future with escapades that made even good friends despair. There was the time when, as college pranksters, he and his brother took on the entire police force of Bloomington, Ind., with their bare fists—and landed in jail.

Chased From Germany.

All biographers of Wendell Willkie tell you of the Willkie family beginnings. All four of Willkie's Protestant grandparents were chased out of Germany when the Democrats lost the revolution in 1848.

Willkie's father settled in 1885 in Elwood, Ind. There were reared the six children of the present Willkie generation—four boys (every one a success in the accepted American sense) and two girls (ditto).

The elder Willkie ascended and descended with the Elwood gas boom, but with his wife—the first woman admitted to the bar of Indiana—he hung out a shingle and managed to educate the children, while cleaning up the town's organized vice.

But the father believed children should work to find their own niche. The children did, but Win was slow making up his mind.

He entered Indiana university at 15, couldn't decide whether it was Jeffersonian democracy he was for, or socialism. Between sessions, he tramped the great west, learned to play a devastating game of poker, earned his way in harvest fields, hotel kitchens, mining camps, tent hotels, and industrial plants.

After college came a lean season or two as history teacher in Coffeyville, Kan. Still keenly aware of his father's losses in the Elwood gas collapse, he decided to make money, and thus make himself free. So he returned to Bloomington and law school.

Then came his marriage and war experience. Home from France, the great decision was in front of him.

Should he, or should he not, turn on that personal magnetism of his and run for congress?

"You should not," lectured Frank C. Dailey, Indianapolis lawyer.

"But what—?" queried Willkie.

"Leave that to me," said Dailey.

He Didn't Get Away.

Willkie did. His decision to abide by the Dailey counsel was the turning point in his life. Dailey got Willkie a job as a lawyer with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., in Akron, O. There he cut a wide swath attired in his big, black Bill Borah hat. He argued for big corporations in courtrooms, and for human liberties off duty and on: By now he was an active Democrat, in politics. In a short few years he was a lawyer in a most successful firm, and the eyes of one of the country's biggest utility magnates were on him.

"Don't let him get away from us," pleaded B. C. Cobb, the Commonwealth & Southern executive, with his Ohio friends.

And so the star of Wendell Willkie rose in the financial heavens, carried him to New York in 1930 and to the fight of his life—upto now; his defense of his own utility system against the New Deal TVA in the Tennessee valley.

seven years and asked council to remedy the situation.

The letter was referred to Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton who told councilmen that during the past several days he had done nothing but handle such complaints and asked council to take action.

Warns of Suits.

He warned that unless action was taken to improve the sewer systems, the city faced several possible damage suits from property owners whose basements were flooded by the water backing up in the sewers.

George C. Kyle, chairman of council's sewer committee, suggested that the city "borrow the money immediately" for sewer improvements and made a motion that the city seek $50,000 to do the job. The motion failed to get a second.

Shultz then reminded council that a survey of the sewer system was made last year but that the city had "not yet spent one penny" to improve the condition.

At this point City Engineer W. C. Statler informed council that a roof drainage survey had been completed by WPA showing the amount of storm water entering the sanitary sewers.

He said the survey was included in 15 volumes of data, but that it would be a few days before he would be able to get out a recapitulation report.

Statler said the survey disclosed that 53 acres of roof surface drained into the sanitary sewers and that during storm periods the runoff amounted to 1,500,000 gallons an hour.

He stressed that something would have to be done with the roof water pointing out that the state department of health had recommended separation of sanitary and storm sewers.

Declaring that the city had "borrowed up to the hilt," Councilman Russell Porch asked City Auditor Paul L. Kelley if the city could consider an increase in its bonded indebtedness.

Kelley stated that the city had a "slight reserve" but warned that "piling up" additional debt would limit next year's operating funds.

Cites Bond Issue.

He said the proper procedure would be to seek approval of the voters of a bond issue to cover cost of improvements.

When Kyle declared that the "city isn't keeping pace with its people," Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, advocated "as the first step" the removal of storm water from the sanitary sewers.

"Where are you going to put the water?" Kyle retorted.

"In the streets," shot back Miller.

"The streets are flooded now, we can't make rivers out of them," Kyle countered.

Miller declared that the storm water must come out of the sanitary sewers regardless of where else it goes.

"My motion still holds for $50,000 immediately," Kyle retorted. "It's ready for a second any time you fellows decide to move."

It failed for the second time to get a second.

Paving the way for invoking the city ordinance which prohibits connecting a roof drain to the sanitary sewer, council then amended the ordinance by repealing a section of the code which set up charges, based on roof area, for such a connection.

paign cabinet. She is a former Chicago newspaper writer.

Formal appointments were those of Rep. William Ditter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house campaign committee and Senator John Townsend of Delaware, chairman of the senate campaign committee.

Third Party Talk Given Impetus.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—While a 12-member advisory committee took charge of Wendell Willkie's Republican presidential campaign, John L. Lewis' endorsement of Sen. Burton K. Wheeler for president developed new third party talk today among the Wheeler forces.

Lewis gave his endorsement in an address at the national Townsend pension convention at St. Louis yesterday shortly after Wheeler had told reporters that his name would be placed before the Democratic national convention regardless of whether President Roosevelt sought renomination.

Wheeler previously had said he would seek the nomination only if Mr. Roosevelt did not run for a third term. The latter has two-thirds of the Democratic delegates, but declined to give his press conference yesterday any hint of his intentions.

"Will the 'champ' accept Mr. Willkie's challenge?" a reporter asked the president.

Mr. Roosevelt failed to catch the reference until another newsman observed that Willkie had expressed the hope that he would "meet the champ in November."

Mr. Roosevelt smiled and replied he did not know. He said he had not read the challenege.

He refused to comment on Willkie's nomination or on the Republican platform. When asked whether he would have a statement on his own "availability" before the Democratic convention meets in Chicago July 15, he replied he was not even a minor prophet.

A. F. L. Stays Out of Campaign.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The American Federation of Labor today declared itself a neutral in the 1940 campaign for president.

"The A. F. L. is not taking sides in the presidential election," it announced in the midst of increasing signs that President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations may form a third party with Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., as its candidate.

The announcement was made by the A. F. L.'s publicity director Philip Pearl in his "facing the facts,, column of the Federation's official weekly news service.

BOY DROWNED, ANOTHER KILLED

Bicycle Rider Dies Under Truck; Butler Youngster Dies In Creek.

Jay C. Wells, 23, employe of the Dodson's World's Fair shows who was struck by a car Monday, was slightly improved. His condition was still considered critical, however. He was regaining consciousness today, it was said at the hospital.

Assistant Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz was investigating the death of the Ridenour boy today, but he said he had found no reason so far to hold Ross L. Chapin, 41, of Norwalk, the truck driver, whose vehicle struck the boy.

Ross and one witness told authorities the boy rode his bicycle out of the entrance to a filling station at North Main and Orchard streets directly into the side of the truck. Chapin was driving south at about 15 miles an hour and stopped his truck within eight feet, Lutz said.

Chapin, shaken by the tragedy, related that he attempted to swerve the truck to the left to avoid the collision, but was unable to turn the heavy vehicle in time.

Acting Coroner D. C. Lavender said the boy's head, shoulder and arm were crushed by one of the rear wheels of the truck. The truck was stopped while the wheel was on the boy's head. The child died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Police Lieut. Bruce Friday who investigated the accident said the Ridenour boy had borrowed the bicycle a few minutes before the tragedy from James Black, colored, 415 North Main street to "take a ride." Friday quoted the owner of the bicycle as saying that he had warned the Ridenour boy not to ride the cycle out into the busy street.

Funeral services for the boy, a fifth grade pupil in the Bowman school, will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at St. John's Evangelical church with Rev. Martin Wappner officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery. The body is at the Jones Funeral home.

Surviving, besides the parents, are three brothers, Hobart, jr., Richard and Ralph; three sisters, Arleen, Thelma, and Carolee, and a grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Weigler of Mansfield.

Attempts to resuscitate the Kirkpatrick boy after his body had been pulled out of the creek failed to revive the child who had been in the water only a few minutes. Gus Beal, who was working nearby on the R. B. Lewis farm, waded into the stream after the body.

The Kirkpatrick boy's companions, Billy Hildebrand and Charles Morgan, said he was unable to swim and waded into the flood-swollen stream beyond his depth.

Funeral services for the boy will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Butler Methodist church, and burial will be in the Mt. Zion cemetery south of North Liberty.

Surviving with the parents are two sisters, Elsie Marie and Anna Louise, at home, and two grandmothers.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—also keep fireworks away from children and be cautious if you go swimming or boating.

New York police are all agog over instructions to arrest a horse thief—as it's been a long time since they've seen a horse.

This may explain it: Wendell Willkie is said to be the kind of person you can call by his first name the second time you meet him.

Year's Most Dangerous Holiday

FOR at least twenty years there has been gradual movement toward saner observance of the Fourth of July—with resultant reduction of the number of children and adults killed, blinded or crippled each year by promiscuous use of fireworks and other explosives.

Development of common sense along this line, however, has been distressingly slow, and the Fourth of July accident toll last year—including highway casualties—mounted to 8,800 killed and 800,000 injured, or one to each 150 of the country's population.

Already reports have been coming in from various parts of the state telling of injuries sustained by children using fireworks for premature celebration of the Fourth—and if parents do not know any better than to permit their children to play with dangerous explosives, how can the youngsters be expected to realize the risk they are taking?

For the past several years Mansfield has had an ordinance that prohibits the sale or use of fireworks inside the city, except for supervised displays, but the state law has permitted sale of fireworks at roadside stands just outside the city. In disregard of local law, many firecrackers and other explosives have been illegally brought into the city for use by children—and occasionally by someone who has the physical appearance of being an adult.

The real solution of the problem is a state law which bans sale or use of fireworks in the state, except for public displays under properly regulated conditions.

Eight states now prohibit the private use of fireworks on the Fourth and thirty states have some sort of regulation. Ohio has been slow to follow the lead of more progressive states in the matter of Fourth of July safety, but with the increased emphasis being placed on the subject in practically every city in the state it seems unlikely that influence of the fireworks lobby will be able to stave off legislative action much longer.

Privilege of Free Speech

SPEAKING before a meeting of engineers, contractors and architects, George Creel, chairman of the bureau of information during the World war, is reported to have made this statement:

"We Americans have sentimentalized about free speech, free assemblage and free press to the point of criminal idiocy."

It is never fair to lift a single sentence from an address. Removed from the context, it often conveys an idea quite different from the one its speaker intended. In this case, perhaps, Mr. Creel was merely saying that we have been too lenient with people who oppose our form of government, even allowing them to advocate its overthrow by violence. It may be that some people have been defended who were really doing the country harm. Nevertheless, belief in our basic freedoms cannot go too far.

The subversive critics whom many Americans now wish to silence, if deprived of free speech, free assemblage and free press, might turn their activities into underground, secret channels which would menace even more gravely the freedoms we thought to protect by suppressing the critics.

It may be foolish to become sentimental about fundamental American principles, but it is both wise and necessary to be intelligently devoted to them, particularly in these confusing times.

Think While You are Sober

ALMOST every day mention is made in this and other newspapers of arrests made on the charge of "driving while intoxicated." Ordinarily the penalty inflicted in such cases includes revocation or suspension of driving privileges.

Penalties are becoming more severe in drunken driving cases as surveys continue to reveal the high percentage of traffic accidents in which intoxicants play a part.

This editorial is intended particularly for motorists who either habitually or occasionally drive after drinking.

In the first place every person who indulges in this practice should fully understand that even a very small amount of alcohol interferes with muscular reactions to the extent of making driving more dangerous. It is not necessary to be "drunk," in the common understanding of that word, to make a person unfit to drive a car.

Then, too, it is common experience for a person who has had a few drinks to feel that he is better able to handle a car than at any other time in his life.

But possibly more important, from a practical standpoint, is the fact that many motorists accustomed to driving after drinking do not think in advance of the complications that may result from arrest, possible jail sentence and revocation of driver's license.

First there is the arrest, which—after [illegible]—appears as quite an annoying episode, [illegible] the matter of paying a fine and possibly serving a jail sentence [illegible] the interference with a job on account of being [illegible] of a car; also the "disgrace" to parents [illegible] and the futile plea to "Please keep [illegible] paper. My poor old mother is very [illegible] kill her," or "My wife is on the verge of a [illegible] down and couldn't stand such a shock."

These are a few of the things to think about WHEN YOU ARE SOBER. If you will THINK—and never again drive after drinking, you may save yourself from arrest, inconvenience, "disgrace"—and possibly [illegible] injury or death.

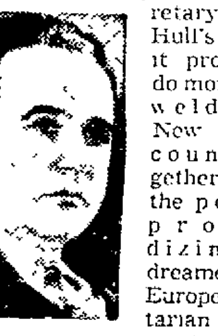
Latin America Needs Money Aid

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THE huge Pan-American commercial organization that the Washington administration is incubating, primarily is State Secretary Cordell Hull's idea, and it promises to do more toward welding the New World countries together than all the political propagandizing ever dreamed of by Europe's totalitarian governments.



Getulio Vargas

As recently suggested by President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, dictatorial methods may have a certain appeal to limited-sized groups of Pan-American folk whose notion is to do the dictating, generally very much to their own advantage.

But essentially what the bulk of New Worldings want is to be prosperous. They can see that their only way of accomplishing it is through the development of their own resources. Heaven knows that they have enough of them to develop. Their surface barely has been scratched. They're about where our North American resources were a couple of hundred years after Columbus discovered us.

We had quite a boom period for a good many generations after that. Latin America is due to start on a similar era of growth in population and riches as soon as it can get its development processes fairly a-going.

To get 'em going, however, involves tremendous investments of capital. But these investments can only come from abroad—just as it took European capital to initiate development of our resources here in the United States, in the first place.

Right From the Jump.

Getting up some impetus was comparatively slow work for us in our own early days.

Latin America is fixed to get away right from the jump the minute the capital's available.

Let me illustrate:

Twenty years ago, when I was visiting Para, at the mouth of the Amazon, that city was thriving like a mushroom as an export outlet for rubber, from up toward the headwaters of the big river. There was no question that the rubber was there. The supply of it was recognized, the world over, as inexhaustible. For some reason or other the market ceased buying upper-Amazon rubber. I think maybe facilities were inadequate to boat it downstream. Anyway, the story now is that there's no raw rubber on earth except from the Dutch East Indies. No such thing! The upper Amazon has limitless forests of it. All that's needed is to collect it, and maybe some craft to bring it to tidewater.

In other words, capital's required.

There's plenty of additional raw stuff that Latin America has to offer, at tremendous profits—if it's developed.

But where's the capital to come from?

Germany hasn't got any. Neither has Italy. Or Russia. Britain and France haven't, either. It's got to come from the United States, if from anywhere.

Secretary Hull's $1,000,000,000 corporation is mentioned as potentially ready to put up the money. It's described as intended to be a "trading company," but its object, it's explained, is to enable the Americas to market their products—which involves the financing of their production.

A Perfect Bonanza.

This thing of Secretary Hull's is a proposal of a perfect bonanza to Latin America.

What's Herr Hitler got to offer as an alternative?

Nothing but some sort of a doubtful barter agreement—nothing in line of magnificent local development.

Maybe a few dictatorial addicts like Getulio Vargas, prefer to altarianism, but Latin-American businessmen aren't likely to fall for it. They want a $1,000,000,000 boom, backed by the United States—not a little one-horse swapping-of-goods dicker, which is the best they can get out of Herr Hitler or Signor Mussolini.

Germany and Italy have some colonies of their own countrymen in Latin America, to be sure. On sentimental grounds possibly a few of these colonists will incline a bit Nazi-istically or Fascist-ically. But it will take a lot of sympathy of that sort to offset the substantial benefits embodied in Secretary Hull's Pan-American scheme.

Health And Diet

Use Apple To Ease Colic.

—By DR. CLENDENING

"YES," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs to the mother. "I know that the cause of this child's colic is eating apples and I know it sounds queer to you for me to tell him to eat apples. Yet I want you to fix the apples in a certain particular way.

"Take a good Jonathan apple and pare it, and then take a spoon and scrape around and around until you get a nice mush, and then feed it to our little friend here a small amount at a time in the course of the next hour or two.

An Effective Cure.

"I have been doing this for years and it is only recently that I find myself in fashion and having some authority behind me. Some European scientists began to use raw apple plup and apple powder in different kinds of intestinal disorders, including summer complaint, in infants and children several years ago. I do not really believe that this child's diarrhea comes from eating apples. It is probably an infection, but at any rate the apple will do it good, whatever is the matter.

"It appears there is something in apple fiber that is called 'pectin' that is supposed to do the work. Don't ask me too much about pectin because I don't understand it myself although I have read all the scientific literature on the subject. All that I got out of the last article I read was that there were 1,000 cases of diarrhea of all kinds studied and 98 per cent of them responded to the use of scraped raw apple pulp.

"You can give as much as two heaping teaspoonfuls of this to the baby with prospects of benefit, if you spread the dosage out over a couple of hours. For older people it is best to withhold all food for three or four days except for a glass of water containing scraped apple, at three or four hour intervals.

Soft Diet.

"When this baby begins to get better, don't feed any solid food for three or four days, give nothing but custards and egg. I should classify raw milk as a solid food; it becomes solid as soon as its gets into the stomach.

"If it is any comfort to you, you may also know that this raw apple pulp contains Vitamin A and that is supposed to have some beneficial action also.

"I understand that you can get

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The little man with the wistful face and the baggy pants has not always had his share of luck from those who control the destinies of the children on Broadway. Trooping into stage doors glowing with hope and trooping out again with blasted dreams is not a novel experience for Jimmy Savo. No one can remember when the critics have not written well of him, but somehow his luck has been to be assigned to plays that have seldom "wowed 'em" at the box office. For this reason one of the greatest, if not the greatest, pantomime artists in the whole length and breadth of the American theater is little known away from Broadway.

But maybe 1940, with its carnage and wars, its horrors and famines and political upheavals, will come through with a new coin of luck for Jimmy Savo. He is in Maine now trying out a new musical comedy—a show that he owns himself—and he will bring it to Broadway this summer. Inquire after this show and he will tell you "It's a one-man revue, full length, and its title is 'Mum's the Word.'"

A SUGGESTIVE title, this. The Savo style is pantomime, not sound. Charlie Chaplin calls him the "greatest pantomimist in the world," and perhaps he is. His appeal is pathos. Other comedians make you laugh. Just as often Savo makes you want to weep.

Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur once wrote a scenario and then filmed a picture with Savo as the star. It was the story of a little Russian hero hobo who wandered through France, finding trouble wherever he turned, and the final fadeout had him trudging down a country road in his baggy pants and his over-flowing shirt, hurt but not down, a wisp of cheer shining through eyes that in anyone else would be dimmed in disillusionment.

As a finished product it was not a good picture. There were obvious theatrical flaws. But moments in it rank, in this observer's opinion, with the best patho-comedy ever put on film.

You must not imagine, from the foregoing, that Jimmy has not made money, and that he is not able to get jobs, or that he is on relief. You don't own Broadway revues when you are broke. But only occasionally, since the days when he was worrying his mother half to death as a kid practicing ledgerdemain on her, juggling soup spoons, or attempting to balance the kitchen stove on his chin, has he come into the rewards he deserves.

IN BROADWAY restaurants Savo is as shy, as Paul Kunasz says, as a Disney deer. He seems uneasy in crowds. This isn't true at all times. It is only that the gift of pantomime, which always has reflected a wistful sort of pathos, makes him appear that way.

In "Mum's the Word" Savo will sing one song—a special number written for him by the great musical comedy song writing team of Rogers and Hart. Otherwise he will be in pantomime—first as a Swedish maiden, then, in this order, as a hospital orderly, a lonely hunchback, a character from Moliere, a spirited Pocahontas in a war dance, a Chinese concert singer, a sentimental laundress, and last, as Eve.

I don't know how long this show will last, or what Broadway will think of it, but if there is only one person I would like to see get all the breaks that anybody can get on a break-queer street like Broadway, it is this same shy little Italian-American in the baggy pants.

Hints on Etiquette

Do not make a habit of telling friends who are about to make a trip that they should look up other friends or relatives of yours when they are in their vicinity. Of course if the travelers ask if you have such friends or relatives in such and such a place, as they would like to call on them, it would be correct.

The Pioneers

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

JUST across our narrow valley is an old homestead that was one of the first building sites on Honey Creek. During the early spring of 1809, when Abraham Lincoln was no more than six weeks old, two adventurous young men, one Jonathan Oldfield, and the other McClure, traveled on foot from Portsmouth, Ohio to Chillicothe, where they rested a few weeks, then trekked north over snowy Indian trails and across swollen streams until they reached the Clearfork and built a cabin there.

I have not met the aged man or woman, or any chronicler of local history or legend, who could tell where this cabin stood. However it is believed to have been the first structure erected in the village of Bellville. These men lived in it for several months while they explored the new land to find places suitable for bringing their families.

These sturdy pioneers brought with them only guns and [illegible] corn in a few open spaces among the wilderness of trees.

Later, when other settlers came, Oldfield chose the site across the valley from our home and hewed logs for a cabin. The scattered settlers were all invited for the "raisin'." It happened that a few weeks prior to this, a band of Indians pitched their wigwams and camped along "the run." During the "raisin'," a young Indian from this camp, out of curiosity came up to see the work. As he approached he was insulted by one of the workmen. Immediately the angry red man grasped his tomahawk and brandished it above his tormentor. In broken English he called upon Jonathan Oldfield to witness the fairness of his cause. Oldfield hurried down from atop the logs and pleaded with the Indian to return home in peace. At the same time he berated soundly the man who had caused the trouble.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There was a lot of immediate jubilation in New Deal circles over the nomination of Wendell Willkie on the basis that he was a power-trust-J. P. Morgan mogul and therefore easy to beat. However, sober-minded reflection from Democratic realists is now the opposite.

They recognize that whether the GOP bosses liked him or not, the Republicans have nominated a man who will give Roosevelt or any other Democratic candidate the fight of his life. Political "oomph," in their opinion, counts for more than the power trust handicap, and there is no getting away from the fact that Willkie is the oomph wonder of present-day politics.

All this sharpens the issue of the third term. More than ever it puts the future of the Democratic party solely in the hands of one man.

For all the Democratic realists admit that Franklin Roosevelt is the only man who can win against Willkie. Cordell Hull would seem a kindly old saint from the early pages of American history compared with the young political dynamo who cleaned up Philadelphia on the sixth ballot.

FDR Shuns Third Term.

MEANWHILE, those who have talked to Roosevelt in recent weeks get the impression that he definitely and genuinely does not want to run. The word he gave Colonel Frank Knox—that Secretary Hull was his candidate—he has also repeated with monotonous rhythm to many others. He has appeared tired and very much discouraged at the way things have been going in Europe. He has said that he does not see why it is up to him to carry the burden for the Democratic party.

Also, he has made the point that in these days of encroaching dictatorships, the United States should avoid making any move which might appear, even by precedent, to be a step toward dictatorship.

So consistent has Roosevelt been in saying this that one of his close friends, a Supreme Court justice, has been telephoning Roosevelt's friends in New York asking them to urge the president to run.

Only one deviation from this line of reasoning has crept into the president's conversation. This is the challenge of Hitler. Roosevelt regards the fuehrer as the greatest menace this country ever has faced; a challenge to everything the American people stand for; likewise a challenge to Roosevelt. And he would like to be in the vanguard of those who eventually down Hitler.

No Other Democrat.

HOWEVER, there is another situation which is important. This is the precarious position in which the Democratic party finds itself if Roosevelt does not run. With two weeks to go before the Chicago convention there is absolutely no other Democrat built up sufficiently to take the ball and carry it. The president has virtually all the delegates pledged to him. The whole convention will be centered on Roosevelt and on no other man.

In other words, Roosevelt will have to run or else it means sure Democratic defeat. Furthermore, if he should back out at the last minute, a tide of resentment would flood against him from those who felt he had let them down—a deluge unequaled since the storm of bitterness against Teddy Roosevelt when he was almost nominated in 1916 but proposed Henry Cabot Lodge instead. The convention refused to accept Lodge, chose Charles Evans Hughes and never forgave T. R.

Faced with a similar situation at Chicago, the Democrats might follow Roosevelt's advice and nominate Cordell Hull, but against Willkie they could not elect him.

In other words, it looks as if Roosevelt, whether he wants to run or not, will have to come through. So barring the unpredictable, you can be pretty sure that the candidates you will have to choose between in November, 1940, are Willkie and Roosevelt.

Note—At least one member of Roosevelt's cabinet will vote for Willkie if Hull is nominated.

Two Immigrants.

ON THE night before the immigration bureau was transferred from the labor department to the justice department, immigration officials staged a farewell party with Madame Perkins as the principal speaker. As secretary of labor she had made no protest against the removal of the agency from her jurisdiction, but on this occasion she spoke her mind.

"I am proud of the humane record of the bureau," Miss Perkins said. "It has always been our policy to remember that the immigrant of today is the citizen of tomorrow. It has been our policy to make the entry of immigrants at Ellis Island a friendly and sympathetic welcome. It is my fervent hope that this will continue to be the bureau's policy.

"Some of you have been in the service long enough to have been on hand when years ago a tow-haired boy from Denmark went through Ellis Island as an immigrant seeking oportunity in our country. That little boy realized his dreams and today William Krudsen is patriotically serving his adopted country as a member of the National Defense Council.

"Some of you have been in the service long enough to have also been on hand when years ago a curly-haired boy from Lithuania went through Ellis Island as an immigrant seeking opportunity here. That little boy also realized his dreams and today Sidney Hillman is patriotically serving his adopted country as a member of the National Defense Council.

"Always remember that our country was founded, settled and made great by immigrants."

L. M., St. Paul—Governor Stasson's charge that Roosevelt had caused the country to be unprepared was hardly based upon fact. Actually, Roosevelt has done a better job of building up the navy than any other peace-time president. During the first four years of Roosevelt, the army got about the same treatment as under Hoover, but in the last three years army appropriations shot up sky high. As a matter of fact, Roosevelt went even further than congress and took money out of PWA funds for the army and navy, until congress inserted a clause in the PWA bill preventin ghim from do-PWA bill preventing him from dofense-minded than congress. . . .

W. S. M., Worcester, Mass.—A Merry-Go-Round story to the effect that the only place where the Stars and Stripes flies day and night was the Capitol Building has brought us many letters calling attention to other cities where the flag flies continually. We are glad to note among these the tomb of Francis Scott Key, author of the national anthem, at Frederick, Md.; also the Worcester, Mass., World War memorial.
